HHJ Gilbert QC: "I am prepared to accept that he has an arguable case that his interests were affected by the registration, and of course my test at the permission stage is to see whether or not there is an arguable case. I think it a matter of enormous regret that in 2003 to 2004 Mr Hall did not get good, firm advice from an experienced firm of commercial solicitors, because everything that has happened since then has involved Mr Hall seeking to overturn what happened with regard to the registration. ... Every other part of Mr Hall's case is directed towards showing that the registration should not have been made."
